

Rocky Mountain Section of the American Scientific Glassblower Society

We have not held a meeting in over three years. A fall meeting is in the planning stages; we have contacted 3 possible sites related to glassblowing. I have contacted several ASGS members in this section; they are interested in attending a section meeting. However I have no takers for taking on positions in the section. Same old issue as many of the sections are contending with. As it's been pointed out, if this section goes inactive I think the possibilities of getting the members to attend a meeting outside of the Denver area is very remote. On a positive note, this is the most interest I have received in several years and think a fall meeting is a real possibility. I am going to poll the group for input as I would like to hold a spring meeting in a resort location. Crest Butte is very nice in the spring, maybe Steamboat Springs or Glenwood; this would be a good test to see if the members are willing to drive any distance.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Rocky Mountain Section,

Ron Bihler
